Course description

Applications of Digital Media (EDIT 5564)

This course is designed to help you effectively select and use a variety of digital media in your instruction. You will develop a rationale for using digital media in your instruction by identifying characteristics of relevant digital media. You will also learn to produce high-quality instructional audio, video, and images that you will present in a learning module or other type of presentation.