

New course descriptions

Distance Education (EDIT 5604)

In this course you will learn about current issues and trends in the field of distance education. You will be introduced to a variety of distance learning strategies and technology. You will review and critique a range of distance learning environments from both an instructor and learning perspective. You will also have the chance to plan a distance education program that meets specific instructional goals.